

PEOPLE WITH INTELLECTUAL DISABILITY GOING TO UNIVERSITY IN AUSTRALIA

Voices of students who attended Uni 2 Beyond and Up The Hill Project

Positives of going to uni

"You get to meet some interesting people, make new friends and widen your social group"

"[I liked teaching] students from different faculties about how to best work with people with disabilities"

"What I really liked about it was we were (...) integrated into the mainstream environment (...) so we weren't seen as separate"

"It gives you the opportunity to learn different things you haven't learned before."

"I like interacting with people"

Challenges of going to uni

"I was a little bit scared going to uni because I didn't know the classes and stuff, all the people"

"When it came to studying that was hard and the research (...) But luckily, I had someone who made it easier"

"[We were] friends for a while, but we sort of gradually lost touch"

"Sometimes accessing the library I found a bit tricky. I didn't know where to go or who to ask"

"Getting around place to place (...) was really hard"

Want to find out more? Please contact:
mary-ann.odonovan@sydney.edu.au
fiona.rillotta@flinders.edu.au
nicole.wedgwood@sydney.edu.au

THE UNIVERSITY OF SYDNEY

CDS

Centre for Disability Studies

Flinders University